OLE HANSON—FIGHTING MAYOR

Ole Hanson was virtually unknown outside his home city of Seattle until a few months ago. Now he is being heralded all over America as "Seattle's fighting mayor, foe of bolshevism." The possibilities of his becoming a "dark horse" candidate of one of the political parties for the presidential nomination in 1920 has been mentioned.

In March, 1918, the people of Seattle elected Ole Hanson mayor of their city. Last February he single-handed stood off 45,000 strikers in the Pacific Coast shipyard tempest.

"The seat of government of this city is still at the city hall and any who attempt to take over government functions here will be summarily dealt with," he told the misguided strikers. In less than ten hours the threatened terror of a small revolution in that city was crushed.

That statement has gone all over America on the wings of electricity and there have appeared in the daily newspapers, syndicated Sunday supplements and several monthly magazines, stories and pictures of Ole Hanson, always "Seattle's fighting mayor."

Ole Hanson was a poor boy. After gaining an education by industry and perseverance, according to the newspaper accounts, he went west, settling in Seattle. There he set up a small grocery store. Later he went into the real estate business. The Ole Hanson Company is one of the largest real estate firms in Seattle today. Ole Hanson has been a member of the Washington state legislature, mayor of Seattle and is yet a young man.

All the publicity that has come out about Seattle's mayor has disclosed nothing so far of the man's politics. His publicity agents, and they are good ones, are keeping that in the background for the present.

Bryan, it is pointed out, was also a young man when he won the presidential nomination in 1896 and made his campaign on the "free silver" issue. He at that time had no more claim to greatness to go before the people with than Seattle's mayor at this time.

Why not give Germany until July 4 to sign the peace terms? Then America could have one grand celebration, the greatest Fourth of July since the signing of that other famous document.

IRELAND'S CAUSE

The fight of a people for social and political democracy always has an appeal in this country.

The United States Senate has officially requested the American Peace Commission at Versailles to obtain for the cause of Ireland a hearing before the Peace Conference. Sixty senators voted for, and only one against the resolution, which read:

"Resolved, that the Senate of the United States earnestly requests the American Peace Commission at Versailles to endeavor to secure for Edward de Valera, Arthur Griffiths and Count George Noble Plunkett a hearing before the Peace Conference in order that they may present the cause of Ireland."

"Resolved, that the Senate of the United States expresses its sympathy with the aspirations of the Irish people for a government of their own choice."

Ireland is entitled to a hearing before the Peace Conference. The Albanians, the Koreans, the Jugo-Slavs and the Czechoslovaks have all had chances to present their claims for nationality before the conference, and it is only wise and just that the Irish be given the same opportunities. The United States as a nation has always stood for the principle that every people be given the opportunity to live peacefully under a government of their own making.

REAL AMERICANISM

Let us say Americanism and internationalism, rather than Americanism or internationalism. An effort is being made to make the people of the United States to believe that, in having internationalism, patriotism—our American patriotism—is lost.

One can be an individual and still become socialized and a part of the community. So may a nation hold its own individuality and become socialized in the community of nations. And just as the individual who does not socialize himself is useless, even harmful to the community, so is the nation that holds stubbornly, selfishly or timidly away from the great cosmopolitan issues of the day, harming itself at the same time it is depriving the world of its co-operation.

Who will say that being a good citizen keeps one from being a good patriot? Who can thoughtfully say that our interest in America excludes our interest in the great world that is becoming closer and closer tied to us by common interests?

The marriage of Miss Mary Margaret Hudson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Haskell Hudson, to Owen Griffith Carpenter was solemnized at 7 o'clock Wednesday night in the Grace and Holy Trinity Church. The Rev. Robert Nelson Spencer read the service before the altar, which was banked with palms, ferns and basket of daisies. The bride, who walked with her father, wore a gown of white tulle and Chantilly lace and white hat, and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and daisies. Mrs. Harrison Johnson who was matron of honor, was gowned in yellow tulle and carried an arm bouquet of roses and daisies. Little Lucy Lynde McCalman and Jean Rosenberg, the flower children, wore frocks of white organdie and yellow sashes and carried baskets of daisies. Before the ceremony Mrs. Solomon Stoddard sang "At Dawning" and "My Dear." The wedding music was played by Mr. Julian Amelung. Mr. Thomas S. Hudson acted as man of honor to Mr. Carpenter. The ushers were Mr. William H. Love, Mr. George Gilbert Moffett, Mr. Richard F. Tickle, Mr. Charles H. Young and Mr. William Ross Slaughter. At the reception following the ceremony Mr. H. Z. Carpenter of Seattle, Wash., father of the groom, received with Mr. and Mrs. Hudson. They were assisted by Miss B. Redmon and Miss Frances Neville of Louisville, Ky. Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter left for a wedding trip East, and will be at home after July 15, Mount Vernon, N. Y.

Mr. Carpenter is a graduate of the School of Journalism of the University.

About Prof. L. S. Palmer.

From the Ashland Bugle.
L. S. Palmer, assistant professor of dairy husbandry and assistant chemist to the experiment station in the department of agricultural chemistry, University of Missouri, has resigned to accept a similar position at the University of Minnesota at a handsome increase of salary and prospects of promotion. The local significance of this paragraph is that Professor Palmer is the Bugle's son-in-law. The idea of leaving Columbia is not pleasing to him, but the Minnesota offer was such that he did not feel justified in turning it down.

Graduate Made News Editor.

Roy C. Bennett, B.J., '14, is now news editor of the Manila Daily Bulletin. He worked in Manila first as news editor of the Cable News American, but went to the Bulletin when a change of management of the American occurred. He is manager of the Philippine Press Service, organized shortly after he went to the islands.

If you said it wasn't a Murad, I would know you were only joking—one can't mistake them—for Murads are 100% pure Turkish tobacco—the world's most famous tobacco for cigarettes.

Murads have that old-fashioned Turkish taste—and upon my word, I never bought as good a Turkish cigarette at Cairo or Constantinople.

It is true that "ordinary" cigarettes cost a trifle less.
